Speaker's profile

Dr. Jagadeesh received his undergraduate degree in pharmacy from the Government College of Pharmacy followed by a master's and a doctoral degree from the All-India Institute of Medical Sciences, New Delhi, and Banaras Hindu University, Varanasi, respectively. In 1975, he joined the faculty at the Department of Pharmaceutics, BHU (and completed his Ph.D. as a teacher candidate) and rose to become Reader in Pharmacology. Later in 1991, he was appointed in absentia as Professor of Pharmacology but did not join.

He was a Canadian Heart Foundation Fellow at the University of Saskatchewan, Canada, followed by a Staff Scientist (NIH research fellow) at Northeastern University College of Pharmacy, Boston. Besides doing research, he also taught undergraduate and graduate classes at the University. Dr. Jagadeesh began his affiliation with the US Food and Drug Administration at Silver Spring, Maryland, in 1990 where he is presently a Senior Expert Pharmacologist. He was an Adjunct Scientist at the National Institutes of Health. His expertise is in cardiovascular and autonomic receptor pharmacology, G Protein-coupled Receptors, and Signal Transduction. Dr. Jagadeesh has authored or co-authored several original articles, review articles, book chapters and edited four books, and commissioned several special issues for scientific journals. He is a peer reviewer for several journals, grant proposals, and thesis examiner for many universities. In addition to the above activities, Dr. Jagadeesh serves on several scientific committees, editorial boards, and professional organizations.
